Example:

In 1859, Joshua abraham Norton a bankrupt business man who his lost fortune investing in Peruvian rice, proclaimed himself "Norton I, Emporor of the United States" and subsequently "Protector of Mexico".

One of the best times in my life was when i go to go to new York. I went with my adviser and three other students from the byu-Idaho scroll. During the day we went to a conference and met with writers photographers and editors from companies like ap, ABC and New York Times. They gave us all kinds of advice like how we should lean to write our own blogs or take photos because today's journalists are expected to do everything and not be as specialized as in the past.

it was very interesting and taught me alot about the future of jornalism so i can better prepare my future students.

At night we did the siteseeing things like go to the statue of liberty, eat at wonderful restaurants and see too broadway plays; drowsy Chaperone and Phantom of The Opera. Our last day was Saint Patrick day and we got to see the parades and bagpipers and go to the World Trade center site and Chinatown. I was very grateful for the chance to develop my talents as well as enjoy a trip to somewhere i wouldnt have been able to go by myself.
