CODING BOOTCAMP

Apple's co-founder, Steve Jobs, said "I think everybody in this country should learn how to program a computer because it teaches you how to think". In today's world, automation and virtualization are core to every 'real-life' application in science, engineering, art and computer application. As technology continues to infiltrate every part of our lives, there is significant growth potential in IT careers. Through a combination of face-to-face lectures, small group work and hands-on experiences, students will learn the fundamentals of writing effective and efficient code, including programming, debugging and testing computer codes using popular programming languages.
