

CERTIFIED MEDICATION AIDE (CMA)

Caring for others and their well-being is central to what certified medication aides are all about! A CMA typically works in a long-term care facility, administering medication and treatments to patients in a safe and prescribed manner. In this career, strong people skills are important due to the amount of direct patient care. CMA is often a prerequisite for advanced training, allowing you to climb the health career ladder.

Learning at Washburn Tech

The certified medication aide (CMA) course introduces the basic concepts of medication administration including drug classifications, drug action and nursing implications for specific drugs. You will gain hands-on experience by working in a clinical setting. High school seniors, who are at least 18 years old, as well as adult students are eligible to enroll in this five-credit-hour course. Upon completion, you will be prepared to take the Medication Aide Certification exam from the Kansas Department of Aging and Disability Services. However, you must be 18 years of age to take the certification exam, as stipulated by state law, and must take the exam within a year of starting CMA course work. Please note: this continuing education course is not eligible for financial aid or commencement.

Job and Salary Outlook

As the health care field grows, so does the demand for CMAs. The Bureau of Labor Statistics projects overall employment of nursing and psychiatric aides to grow by 20 percent between 2010 and 2020, which is faster than the average for all occupations. According to the Kansas Department of Labor, the average salary for an entry-level medical assistant in 2015 was $12.96 an hour or $26,956 annually. The average wage was $19.97 an hour or $41,546 annually.

Entry Requirements

You must have a current Kansas CNA license to enroll. Students are required to take the ACT WorkKeys and score a 4 in both Reading and Math. Other assessments or college coursework can be accepted in place of WorkKeys. Please see a recruiter for details. Students also must complete an application.
