A New Learning Ecosystem & Portal for Personalized Competency-Based Education

John Milam and Jeremiah Shifflett Lord Fairfax Community College

Knowledge to Work and the HigherEd.org portal are funded in part by a TAACCCT grant from the U.S. Department of Labor's Employment and Training Administration

Our core value added:
personalized learning tied to competencies using OER

The vendor community & our LMS & SIS weren't ready, so we built our own

We leveraged IMS Global's CBE working group, evaluated CEDS, & helped create an extended transcript use case w/ sample data

Almost everything we've built for our own programs & students, we put on the web
for free

There is no educational search engine for individual learners, just admissions guides, content repositories, & vendor-specific resources.

amazon

So we create a mashup:

Google

Amazon + Google = HigherEd.org learning

We leverage repositories & APIs to share content mapped to competencies & career paths

We're like the 100th monkey, dipping digital food in the ashes of credits & courses for salt

This kind of learning ecosystem breaks the supply chain of higher education, disintermediating content, assessment, & credentials

We want your help to share & grow this work, so that we can all do what we do well

Thank you for sharing the vision
