		An email with some jobs that were posted on other websites, jobs that I was clearly not qualified for in any way. And in talking with my classmates we all felt the same way. The people who got jobs out of this grant were mostly Bucks County Community College workers. Out of 19 students in my class, only one is actually working with billing and coding, and she was lucky to get that role all on her own. I felt that the class summed up to be a waste of 6

266	Jan 2, 2014 9:46 PM	job search and personal support. I had a problem with the instructor. I made a complaint following proper procedures. I was then banned from class. I was given the option of staying in the class, dependent on the team's decision. If they decided to allow me back into class(I would be put on probation) or I could take a full refund and drop the class on my own. I am a very good student. I did not deserve to be put on probation because I had a complaint. I was retaliated against. Not fair. I failed the CPC exam because I had no instruction
