Module D.2 Patient Confidentiality and HIPAA

1

Confidentiality and Privacy

- Privacy Act of 1974
 - Citizens have right to gain access to records and to copy records if necessary
- Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA)
 - Regulates the privacy of patient health information

2

Confidentiality and Privacy (Continued)

- Privacy Rule
 - Applies to Protected Health Information (PHI)
- HITECH Act
 - Meant to promote the adoption and “meaningful use” of health information technology

3

Release of Information and Consent

- Patients have the right to know how, when, and why their medical information is used
- Providers can refuse treatment without consent form

4

Transactions Covered by Electronic Transactions

- Healthcare provider submitting an electronic claim
- Physician sending PHI to another physician
- Physician sending PHI to a billing service

5

Patient Obligations Under HIPAA

- Obtain consent and authorization for any disclosure
- Permit patient access to medical information
- Provide only the minimum necessary standard

6

Penalties for Noncompliance with HIPAA

- Civil penalties
- Federal criminal liability with sanctions (fines) and time in prison
- Risk of class action suit and public relations damage

7

Patients' Rights Under the Privacy Standards

- Copy of privacy notice
- Access to medical records
- Limit how health care information is shared
- Accounting of to whom information is given

8

Patients' Rights Under the Privacy Standards: Continued

- Ask to be contacted in special way (phone or mail)
- Ask to be contacted in a place other than home or work
- Examine health information provider's copy
- Complain to "covered entity" if violation of privacy is suspected

9

Problems Relating to HIPAA'S Privacy Rules

- Healthcare providers may refuse to provide medical records to anyone except the patient
- Compliance with HIPAA slows police investigations and impedes prosecution of crimes

10

Misconceptions About HIPAA

- Privacy laws do NOT:
 - prevent physicians or hospitals from sharing patient information to treat
 - prevent disclosure to clergy
 - apply to most police or fire departments

11

Misconceptions About HIPAA (Continued)

- Privacy laws DO:
 - Allow hospitals and physicians to share information with spouse or anyone patient has identified as involved in their care

12

Recommendations for Implementing HIPAA

- Appoint and train privacy officer
- Conduct internal assessment of existing policies
- Enter agreements with all non-employee service providers

13

Recommendations for Implementing HIPAA (Continued)

- Adopt procedures for handling patient requests
- Implement Notice of Privacy practices
- Revise employee manuals regarding HIPAA standards

14

More Recommendations for Implementing HIPAA

- Train all employees on policies and procedures
- Retain signed authorizations, copies, etc. (six years)
- Implement and enforce sanctions for violations
- Establish complaint process for noncompliance
